

Origami-Books

These book structures are a nice option to use practice sheets.

Use rectangular pre-designed papers and fold along the dashed lines, then cut along the continuous lines.

The principle of folding these books is always the same. You start on one side, fold the divisions, alternating up and down, like a concertina book. When you get to a corner just fold around the corner but never fold them inwards, otherwise they get stuck.

Variations:

- 1 simple cut over two folds
(may be used as place cards or menus)
- 2 simple cut over three folds
(start folding on one side and then fold zig-zag, like a concertina book)
- 3 T-like cut
(creates interesting details)
- 4 & 5 multiple cuts
(even more interesting details)
